

W. P. WALTON.

Our Spartan Soldiers.

Edward Marshall, the wounded correspondent, says in his "Recollections of Las Guasimas" in Scribner's: "There is one incident of the day which shines out in my memory above all others now as I lie in a New York hospital writing. It occurred at the field hospital. About a dozen of us were lying there. A continual chorus of moans rose through the tree branches overhead. The surgeons, with hands and bared arms dripping and clothes literally saturated with blood, were straining every nerve to prepare the wounded for the journey down to Siboney. Behind me lay Capt. McClintock, with his lower leg-bones literally ground to powder. He bore his pain as gallantly as he had led his men, and that is saying much. I think Maj. Brodie was also there. It was a doleful group. Amputation and death stared its members in their gloomy faces. Suddenly a voice started softly:

"My country 'tis of thee,
Sweet land of liberty,
Of thee I sing."

"Other voices took it up:

"Land where my fathers died,
Land of the Pilgrim's pride—"

"The quivering, quivering chorus, punctuated by groans and made spasmodic by pain, trembled up from that little group of wounded Americans in the midst of the Cuban solitude—the pluckiest, most heart-felt song that human beings ever sang. There was one voice that did not quite keep up with the others. It was so weak that I did not hear it until all the rest had finished with the line:

"Let freedom ring."

Then, halting, struggling, faint, it repeated slowly:

"Land—of—the—Pilgrim's—pride,
Let Freedom—"

"The last word was a woeful cry. One more son had died as died the fathers."

Mrs. Meia Roberts, a prominent woman of Breathitt county, Ky., spoke a few days ago for the first time in ten years. In 1888 she had typhoid fever and it left her speechless. Since then she has communicated with her friends by signs and writing. On the day mentioned, she received a letter from a nephew who is stationed at Chickamauga and is a member of the Second Kentucky regiment. The young man told of the trials of a soldier's life and said he would like to be at home. He said, however, that he would wear the blue until the war was over, and hoped soon to be in the thickest of the fight. The letter closed with the last stanza of a confederate song which Mrs. Roberts sang to the young man when he was a baby. As she read it her lips began to move, and in a short time she was singing as she did many years ago.

An Omaha exchange remarks that the exposition is an educator, but the schoolmaster seems to be absent from Omaha just now, judging by some of the signs displayed about the city. The fact that "Sody Water" is on sale is impressed upon the minds of those who pass through the Twentieth street entrance to the exposition grounds, and "Farmers' horses and rigs cared for and fed" is a sign that sets the lover of syntax to dancing. One is apt to forget one's thirst when greeted by the announcement that pop is for sale at "Five cents a bottle." A sign on a tent near the exposition grounds invites the passer-by to stop and have his or her fortune told by a "Pharisee Egyptian," but no explanation is offered as to what a "Pharisee Egyptian" may be. Perhaps the diviner of the future has heard of the occult power of the Parsee of India, and, being a little bit befogged, connected it with Egypt.

An Arizona rancher has posted the following notice on a cottonwood tree near his place: "My wife Sarah has left my ranch when I didn't do a thing too her and I want it distinkly understood that any Man as takes her in and Keers for her on my account will get himself Pumpedso Full of Led that some tenderfoot will locate him for a mineral claim. A word to the wise is sufficient and orter work on fools."

A current report says that the vault in Montgomery cemetery at Norristown, Pa., containing the remains of Gen. Winfield S. Hancock, is still neglected and almost forgotten, says the Doylestown Intelligencer. The grave stands by itself in the south-eastern corner of the grounds, and no inscription of any kind marks the last resting place of one of Pennsylvania's greatest soldiers.

A soldier dead for three days was about to be dissected at the Algiers military hospital when he awoke up and, before the doctors recovered from their surprise, got off the dissecting table and walked into the next room, where he wrote down some words on a piece of paper to make sure that he was alive and awake. The doctors now say that he has completely recovered from his lethargy.
